GCHS grad killed in N. Ky. home invasion

By Bryan Marshall
Staff Writer

The Grant County High School community was “shocked” and “devastated” after learning one of their own was murdered last week in an apparent home invasion.

Eighteen-year-old Michaela Briede, a 2012 GCHS graduate, was shot to death at her Fort Mitchell apartment May 28.

GCHS Principal Claudette Herald said staff and faculty were closing the school year down for the summer when they first heard the news.

Gathered together in the library, teachers and staff then were notified of Briede’s death.

“I was devastated,” Herald said. “It’s such a tragedy. It seems like in the school business you are so close knit. The faculty is close knit. Your student population is close knit. So, it’s devastating when you hear that.”

Briede spent her junior and senior years at GCHS after transferring from Lafayette High School in Lexington.

Herald described Briede as “a great student.”

“She was very focused on academics,” Herald said. “She had a vibrant personality. She had a lot of students in her circle of friends. She was very passionate and ready to graduate high school and move on in post-secondary. I ran into one of her classmates and she said they were in shock.”

Bargain hunters!

One Williamstown woman hopes that bargain hunters will line up for this weekend’s U.S. 25 yard sale.

The U.S. 25 yard sale begins Thursday, June 6 and continues through Saturday, June 8.

Judy Wigginton got the idea for the three-day event from the infamous U.S. 127 yard sale held in August and last year she began working the phones to make it happen.

Wigginton was given office space by the city of Williamstown.

Feagan chosen as WHS principal

By Bryan Marshall
Staff Writer

Williamstown Jr./Sr. High School will have a familiar new leader.

Brandy Feagan, who has served as the school’s guidance counselor since 2008, has been named principal.

She will replace Dave Johnstone, who retired from the position at the end of the school year.

“I feel incredibly honored and blessed beyond words to have been chosen for this position,” Feagan said. “My reaction upon being chosen was complete shock at first, but was quickly followed by happiness and excitement. I can’t wait to get started and make a few positive changes that will keep our school ‘One of the best reasons to live in Williamstown.’”

36 teams walked at the Grant Co. Relay because . . .

CANCER NEVER SLEEPS

They came, they walked, they gave, they laughed and they cried. Thirty-six teams, despite rain and wind gusts, raised more than $80,000 on May 31 at the Grant County Relay For Life in the community’s fight against cancer.

Despite the rain and wet conditions, teams and survivors gathered for a meal prepared by Performance Pipe employees. Activities such as a live auction, a visit from Elvis, a pizza eating contest and a team tug-of-war were held. See next week’s Grant County News for more photos and team totals from the signature fund-raising event for the American Cancer Society.

PERSONALLY SPEAKING

Relay rocks on, despite rain

“I can see clearly now the rain has gone and it’s gonna be a bright, bright sunshiny day.”

Those words kept dancing through my mind last Friday night as the Grant County Relay For Life committee, which are a whole host of volunteers who take the fight against cancer seriously, huddled under a tent with the cancer survivors and watched it rain, at times downpour, then a wind gust that destroyed tents and tables and then more rain.

All I could think was, is this REALLY happening considering all the work and effort that the committee and teams had put into raising money for the relay?

But then I looked around and noticed a few purple shirts, moments later a few more and then even more and I was reminded that cancer doesn’t care about rain or wind or anything else.

One of the dear, sweet survivors could see the distress on my face and she simply said, “Hey, we survived cancer, this (weather) is nothing.”

And that’s when I was jolted out of the wishful thinking for a bright, sunny evening and reminded that a little rain wasn’t going to stop Grant County’s fight against cancer.

So we relayed and by the end of the night, 36 teams from Corinth to Crittenden from banks, the hospital, doctor’s offices, clothing stores, newspaper office, churches and 4-H, had raised right at $80,000.

I’m told more fundraising is planned so that number will go even higher.

What a night it was! Besides the rain and wind, there was laughter and tears, smiles and hugs, food and fun!

The best part – seeing more than 68 survivors, proudly wearing their bright purple shirts, making their victory lap around the track.

The other best part – watching Grant County, from Corinth to Crittenden and everywhere in between, come together to fight against cancer.

I’ve watched the event grow from a dozen teams to more than 30. I’ve had the opportunity to meet some wonderful cancer survivors and their families. I’ve shared in the grief of some of those families and friends who lost their battle with cancer.

It seems like every day you hear of someone else from our community that has been diagnosed with cancer.

Someone asked me not long ago if I ever thought that a cure for cancer

Jamie
BAKER-NANTZ

Editor

would be found.

I’ll sum it up this way – I’m not a researcher, scientist or a doctor. I don’t know if they’ll ever stop people from getting cancer.

I do believe, though, that one day everyone will be a cancer survivor. Some of the medications and treatments being offered to cancer patients today weren’t even available 10 years ago.

Just ask Jeff Walters, BJ Walters, Hope Catron, Emily Covey, William Murphy or Felicity Spicer what a difference the relay and the ACS has made in their lives.

Through the generous support of this community and the hard work of many individuals, the relay was a success.

Be proud Grant County. Raising more than $80,000 calls for celebration.

It’s also a warning to cancer, a disease that shows no signs of stopping, that Grant County will celebrate, remember and fight back and we’re going to keep fighting until we win.

GUEST COLUMN

WHS graduate is ready to face future

The 2012-2013 school year has come to a close!

For the class of 2013, this means that graduation, what we’ve been working so hard for over the last 12 years, has finally happened.

While it still feels a little surreal the class of 2013 will now be moving on all over Kentucky and Ohio come fall to further our educations. The last few weeks at Williamstown High School are some of the most enjoyable I have experienced in my school career.

We have the unique opportunity at Williamstown to hold Class Night.

This is an important time for seniors for many reasons. We begin working with a little over a week left in the year and we get to work together in the gym all day every day until the set and the practicing is completed.

For most classes this is a time when arguing begins because there are many different opinions, but our class was exactly the opposite. Our class worked great with one another and in my opinion we became the closest we have ever been.

People who had never spoken to one another did and it made everyone wish we had been like that all along.

This year the theme at Class Night was Alice and Wonderland. After a night full of crying and laughing the senior class went out together for dinner. It was an amazing night for all of the seniors.

Soon following class night comes graduation.

The feeling at graduation was weird because it was beginning to sink in that for the class of 2013 this would be the last time some of us ever saw each other.

After all of the years we have been to school together it was an emotional day realizing after that day everything was going to change.

However, graduation is a great day because everything we have spent the first half of our lives working for has now been achieved. It was a major stepping stone and accomplishment in our lives.

The last four years have made me realize many things.

Our class has many people to thank for getting us to where we are now. Whether it be teachers, administration, family or friends we have had a lot of help over the years. I would like to extend a sincere thank you to all of these people for helping us achieve our first major milestone.

Also, high school is not always a piece of cake. It comes with many petty fights, broken hearts and silly mistakes; but for every negative thing that happens, there are 10 positive things to make up for it.

We have learned a lot over those years, not just in the classroom, but also about life. These are lessons that sometimes we don’t want to learn but none-the-less they are important.

So to all of the students who will be heading back to Williamstown come fall, make the most of the rest of your high school career. Take every opportunity you get. Don’t make a mountain out of a mole hill because looking back, things are not as bad as they seem.

To the class of 2013, I am proud to say that I graduated with the outstanding group of people that I did. Good luck in the future, even though I know it’s not needed.

The class of 2013 is officially off to bigger and better things, and knowing my class, college campuses all around the state should get ready for big things coming their way!

A WORD FROM OUR READERS

School board should resign

Every Grant County taxpayer should thank Scott Mann for calling attention to the egregious misuse of public funds by the School Board. (Grant County News, May 30, 2013) I cannot imagine a more outrageous use of taxpayer money than the board’s decision to pay for the superintendent’s education. I spent 35 years as an educator and never heard of any kind of school system funding an employee’s education.

Grant County students have seen the funding and staffing for their schools decrease drastically in recent years as lowered state funding and a faltering economy have done great damage to the school system.

Students in science classes do not even have textbooks, the school libraries have seen their funding reduced almost to zero, faculty and staff have been cut, and those remaining have received no salary increases.

Despite all of these hardships that affect the education students should be receiving, the board can find $34,000 for the superintendent’s doctorate.

There is one error in Scott Mann’s letter: he concedes there may be a small benefit from the superintendent receiving his doctorate. He is too kind: there will be no benefit whatsoever to Grant County. Nothing he learns in that program will improve his management of the school system one iota. Its only effect will be to put him in a position to demand a higher salary or to get a higher-paying job somewhere else.

Mann states that the board should be voted out of office. I disagree; they should resign in shame for their irresponsible action.

DOWN AND DIRTY

Carpenter bees

I absolutely do not approve of killing bees. In fact, we are in a bit of a crisis with a diminishing population with the suspected cause being the use of pesticides, notably neonicotinoids. I do not fear bees, I am not allergic and I can happily co-exist....except that they are eating my house. Or, rather they are tunneling into the wood that makes up my house so they can lay eggs and have lots of babies.

I am talking about the friendly carpenter bee that we are actually killing only because if we don't we will have a serious structural problem. I long ignored them and now we are paying for it. We are not using chemicals but rather strategic whacking with the hand and a stomp once the bee is flung to the ground. We have no other choice! Approximately 20 bees have been removed from the scene of the crime in the last three weeks. It's been stressful on all involved.

Carpenter bees are essentially harmless. The male, who hovers about, has no stinger. The female tunnels and lays her eggs; when she does come out you would have to handle her for her to sting. I've never been stung by one (even hand-whacking them to the ground). They sort of become acquaintances because they are always there hovering about, I suppose this is why I never took action against them for so many years. Two years ago the straw that broke the camel's back was when the downy woodpeckers showed up and gouged out some holes as the worked to get the bee larvae inside.

Carpenter bees look like bumble bees, but bumbles nest in the ground and carpenter bees nest, in tunnels that they excavate in bare, soft wood (our house is unpainted western cedar.) They are less likely to tunnel into painted or pressure treated wood.

Jeneen WICHE
Weekend Gardener

Those pesky bees
As I said, I used to ignore them, but they can cause structural damage if they continue to tunnel, year after year, in the same wood. The adult bee from this spring's eggs will emerge in late summer. These bees will over winter in the tunnels and emerge next spring and make new tunnels or widen existing tunnels to lay their eggs.

This is where the problem lies....if you feel that too much activity is taking place in structures like decks then treat the new tunnels with a residual insecticide like Sevin inside the entrance hole. Wait a week and then plug the hole with a dowel rod or wood putty. Bees are good, however, so if there is no apparent structural damage just embrace your garden dwellers. For example, I have some decoy places for them to lay eggs, I leave an old tobacco stake in the corner of the patio and they use this instead of the house.

There seems to be an equally large amount of carpenter ants scurrying around in the garden, too; none in the house so far. Carpenter ants are large, brown to black ants that hollow out soft wood for their egg nests. Decks, fences, old stumps or the baseboards inside your home are common places to find daytime activity. You will see sawdust that is sandy in appearance in the areas they are most active outdoors in the garden. Generally they only find their way inside your home in search of food, than they return to their outside nest. Their colonies are not always found in wood, any hollowed, dark, cool place is appealing. They do, however prefer soft, moist wood for their egg nests.

Boric acid is a good treatment for indoors because it is non-toxic to pets. Professionals should be called in for dramatic in-home infestations. For out-doors the problem can be remedied by removing desirable habitat like rotting stumps or wood. Or appreciate the fact that ants aerate the soil and can help to control grubs; if you cannot reconcile their presence than you can opt to treat the active infestation with an insecticide labeled for ants.

FAITH & VALUES

RELIGIOUS VIEWS

And away they go on the race of life

Well, it's now Triple Crown season. That time of the year when we see if a horse and its rider can win three major races in less than two months. Most of us probably watched as Orb came from the back of the pack to win this year's Kentucky Derby at Churchill Downs. It was a fascinating race to watch.

On a sloppy track, Orb came from behind in the final furlong of the race to overcome the field and take the first leg of the Triple Crown. Unfortunately, we have to wait to see if we will get to witness a Triple Crown winner next year for the first time in 35 years as Orb lost the second race. Affirmed was the last of 11 horses to achieve the elusive feat.

You are probably asking, "What does horse racing have to do with a pastors' column"? Well, watching the Kentucky Derby got me thinking about the race we run in life. The Apostle Paul gives us encouragement as to how we are to run our race in this life. In I Corinthians 9:24-27, Paul instructs us to run with passion, with self-control and with purpose. How are you running your race right now? Are you running with a passion for God and His will, or are you pursuing the passions of self and the world? Are you running with self-control, or are you getting distracted and off course? Are you just running, not sure where you are going, or are you running with the purpose of glorifying God in your life and race?

Josh
HILDEBRAND

Pastor's Corner

Paul also reminds us in this passage that the reward for running the race in a biblical manner is far greater than a Triple Crown. That crown will "fade away". It will not last for eternity. But the crown that awaits the champion believer is the eternal privilege of basking in the glory of Almighty God and Jesus the Son in heaven! Praise the Lord!

What impresses me about Paul is that he walked his talk. In II Timothy 4:7, Paul reports at the end of his ministry, "I have fought the good fight, I have finished the race, I have kept the faith." His passion was for God, he remained self-controlled, and he remained focused on the task of glorifying God in his life and race.

What changes do you need to make in order to get back to running the race as Paul did? It's my prayer that as you hear the divine "and down the stretch they come" and reach the finish line that you will hear the words of your savior, "Well done, good and faithful servant."

Sherman, Williamstown recognized for energy reduction

By Bryan Marshall
Staff Writer

Two local schools are saving money and earning recognition for its energy saving practices.

Sherman Elementary and the Williamstown Independent School District were recently awarded an Energy Star by the Environmental Protection Agency and the Kentucky Department of Energy Development and Independence.

The buildings, which are the only schools in the county given the award, exceeded the required score of 75 to achieve the Energy Star label.

The label is a national symbol for protecting the environment through superior energy performance.

Bot
Sherman Elementary ranks in the top 12 percent of schools nationwide in energy efficiency and utilization.

Jon Nipple, energy manager for Grant County Schools and Williamstown Independent, called the feat "a great accomplishment" at an assembly at the elementary school.

"When Sherman Elementary was built in 2008 it also achieved this award," he said. "However, in the next few years, the score dropped until Sherman was no longer operating at Energy Star levels. Over the last two years, the performance of the school has greatly improved until it is once again at an Energy Star level and has surpassed the original score for this building."

Earning the award also means that the school has seen a dramatic reduction in energy costs.

In 2010, the energy bills for Sherman Elementary were $92,558.

This year's energy bills will be $71,600, a $21,000 savings.

"As students and teachers, you make a difference everyday with the choices you make - turning off lights, closing doors and windows, unplugging unused appliances, dressing appropriately," Nipple said at the assembly. "These are the things you've done and need to continue to conserve our resources."

After presenting the award, Nipple and SES students were shown a presentation involving a skit by the school's student-led Energy Team.

The students showed what goes into turning on a lightbulb while two Grant County High School Career and Technical students explained how solar panels and a wind turbine operated.

"From my perspective we can do a lot of great things to help schools lower costs and manage energy, yet when we involve the students in the learning and teaching, we all reap the rewards, now and in the future," Nipple said.

Williamstown Independent Schools received their recognition at their monthly school board meeting.

The district ranks in the top 20 percent, which is a far cry from three years ago when Williamstown was in the bottom 40 percent nationwide, said Nipple.

"To move up 40 places in that ranking is quite an accomplishment," he said.

For fiscal year 2010, Williamstown spent $208,000 on energy costs.

However, the district used 30 percent less energy this year and will save $70,000 in energy bills.

While handing out the Energy Star plaque and a Governor's Certificate, Nipple praised Superintendent Sally Skinner for her leadership in reducing energy consumption also at the board office by more than 25 percent, along with Molly McComas for her day-to-day energy management and Allen Wolfe for his operational management that led to improved energy utilization.

"It is not just the award but actions that led to this award that demonstrate to the students, staff and community the importance of fiscal and environmental stewardship," Nipple said to the school board. "Raising the collective awareness of conservation of our natural resources is one of our most critical global issues. I thank you."

Bradley Reeves, Zach Roberts, Steven Fightmaster and Lucas Hampton, students at Grant County High School, have qualified for the national Technology Student Association competition held June 27 in Orlando.

GCHS students to compete at national TSA in Orlando

Four Grant County High School students earned top honors in state competition to qualify for national competition in Orlando later this month.

The students are members of the GCHS Technology Student Association, for the Grant County Career and Technical Center.

Steven Fightmaster placed third in state in extemporaneous speech. He was given 15 minutes to prepare a speech on a given topic and then present a five-minute speech.

Zachary Roberts and Bradley Reeves placed third in architectural renovation, where they were required to take a house that already exists and make plans and new blueprints for a renovation.

Lucas Hampton and Steven Fightmaster placed first in debating technology issues. Their topic was social media.

Fightmaster, along with Corey Swofford and Eric Mann also qualified in the technology bowl but will not be attending the national competition.

"As their advisor and teacher, I was proud of the students and how well they represented Grant County at state," said Chastity Rohan.

Rohan said the Technology Student Association is a student organization for the engineering program. It helps students build skills such as creating new ideas, documenting their work and public speaking. "I feel these are all important skills to have in the work force and life in general," Rohan said.

To help fund the trip, the student association is hosting an engineering camp for fourth through ninth grade students, as well as selling posters, decals and plaques.

KILLED

Little information has been released a week following Briede’s death.

Fort Mitchell Police received a 911 call at 11:46 p.m. reporting someone had been shot in the chest at The Vinings of Fort Mitchell apartment complex.

Briede, who was studying business at Thomas More College in Crestview Hills, was found in her second-story apartment complex and was pronounced dead at the scene.

Detectives have interviewed multiple witnesses, including a male witness at the apartment who is believed to have been present at the time of the shooting, according to Police Chief Jeff Eldridge.

Kenton County Commonwealth’s Attorney Rob Sanders took the social media website Twitter shortly after the shooting to comment on the case.

“Ft Mitchell homicide was NOT a random act,” he wrote. “Residence was apparently targeted. No arrests yet. Investigation continues.”

No arrests or suspects have been named.

Briede’s family is no stranger to tragedy.

Her aunt, Lesley Briede, was killed violently in 1992 at the age of 26 by Carlos Faulkner, 46, who is incarcerated at the Kentucky State Reformatory in LaGrange.

Faulkner, who was convicted of burglary, murder and being a persistent felony offender, will be eligible for parole in January 2018, according to the Department of Corrections.

Briede’s grandmother, Barbara Briede, became a victim rights advocate in Kentucky after Faulkner was sentenced to life in prison but with an eligibility for parole after 25 years.

Fifteen years ago, Barbara Briede pressured Kentucky legislators to pass a law, eventually named the Briede Bill, that allowed for a sentence of life without parole.

Before, offenders were only required to serve 50 percent of their sentence.

The crime bill also legislated a 50 percent increase in victim compensation and mandated that violent offenders serve at least 85 percent of their sentence.

Barbara Briede of Walton, who has been active as the local chapter president of Kentuckians Voice for Crime Victims, requested authorities not release her contact information after Michaela’s death.

However, in April, she wrote a letter to the Community Recorder showing her support for the death penalty.

“We, law-abiding citizens, should not have to worry about someone like (Faulkner) lurking in society,” Barbara Briede wrote. “Isn’t there enough violence? It is getting worse and more heinous everyday... I would like a safe, peaceful place to live. How about the rest of you?”

Anyone with information on the murder of Michaela Briede is asked to call Crimestoppers at 513-852-3040 or the Fort Mitchell Police Department at 859-331-2823.

(Some information provided by the Kentucky Enquirer through the Kentucky Press New Service.)

YARD SALE

She began calling cities along U.S. 25 in Kentucky, Tennessee and Georgia. She even traveled up and down U.S. 25 distributing flyers.

The inaugural event last year met with enthusiasm from sellers in Grant County.

Susan Clark of Corinth saw one of the flyers and decided to set up a booth. Clark, a regular seller on the 127 sale, rented a space from Bruce’s Grocery in Mason.

She said that business was steady on Thursday and Friday last year.

“There was more traffic than we thought,” she said. “It was a nice, sunny day and it seemed that people were just out enjoying it.”

Wigginton was pleased with the results.

“From what I saw, it went well,” she said. “From the people that I’ve spoken with, people made good money.”

One change from last year was to shorten the sale to three days instead of four.

“We did this because the sellers were ready to pack up on Sunday and the buyers had dwindled by then,” Wigginton said.

Churches, businesses and individuals have jumped on the opportunity to rent yard sale space along U.S. 25.

“The city building has received a lot of calls requesting information,” said Williamstown Mayor Rick Skinner.

He said one call was from LaFollette, Tenn.

“That city has really embraced this idea,” he said. “I definitely like that the word is spreading and people are beginning to realize that they will have people come and shop. I think in years to come it will be neat to know that someone in Williamstown, Ky. actually started the U.S. 25 yard sale.”
